This year our Young Authors' Celebration proudly features published author Akshaj Mehta. Akshaj is a thirteen-year-old who has written 6 books and published four! He also serves as a science editor for an online magazine.

He has been writing since he was four and his passion for writing has given birth to more than just great books! Akshaj has also started a website, WritetoLead.com and donated the profits from his books to many charities including the Sacramento Children's Home, Make-A-Wish Foundation, Reading Partners-Sacramento, and the Stanford Settlement Teen Center. He has also been the recipient of numerous awards for his service projects.

Through his website, Akshaj attempts to share his love and passion for writing and reading. It provides other young authors ages 8-16 with a safe platform on which to share their writing.

Come hear this amazing young man share his story... and his love for writing!

Student authors nominated by their classroom teachers.
